The Potter Force.

WASHINGTON, June 25. The examination of Mrs. Jenks was resumed today. She said that she had not yet received the letters inquired for yesterday, and did not know whether they would be of any importance. She had seen Mrs. Weber at Donaldsonville shortly before leaving for Washington, and Mrs. Weber had told her Anderson had said she, Mrs. Jenks, had received about one hundred thousand dollars for certain shares, and appeared very happy because she had received no part of it. Mrs. Jenks then told her that Mrs. Weber told her that she had received a letter from Mr. Jenks, which she had given to her. Mrs. Jenks then told her that she had given the letter to Mr. Jenks, and that he had given it to Mr. Potter.

An meeting of the Republican State Central Committee, held at this place, it was ordered that the State Republican convention be held on the 7th of August, 1878, at Denver, Colorado, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the governor, one deputy governor, one secretary of state, one state treasurer, one auditor of state, one superintendent of public instruction, two regents of the University, one attorney general, and one representative in congress; and transact such other business as may be deemed necessary. The committee fixed the basis of representation in this convention at one delegate for each county, and one delegate for every one hundred votes or fraction thereof exceeding fifty, polled for Governor at the general election in 1876. In accordance with the above the following apportionment for representation was determined upon:

Arapahoe	23	Jefferson	6
Boulder	10	Lake	3
Bent	4	Larimer	3
Chaffee	5	La Plata	5
Conejos	4	Las Animas	5
Clear Creek	13	Ouray	4
Custer	2	Park	6
Douglas	4	Pueblo	6
Elbert	2	Rio Grande	5
El Paso	8	Roanoke	2
Fremont	3	San Juan	4
Gilpin	11	Saguache	4
Grand	2	Summit	3
Huerfano	5	Weld	9

The Committee requests the various counties to select their delegates and to provide for the selection of delegates.

Republican County Convention.

Colorado Springs, June 25th, 1878.

The Republican convention of El Paso county will be held at city hall in Colorado Springs on Saturday, July 20th, at 3 o'clock p.m. It will be the duty of said convention to appoint a county committee for the ensuing year; to choose eight delegates to attend the state convention in Denver on the 27th of August, and to nominate the following candidates, to-wit: One senator and two representatives for the general assembly, also one county commissioner.

It is suggested that the republicans of the county meet in their respective precincts on Saturday, July 13th, to nominate candidates for the offices of precinct justice of the peace and constable, appoint precinct committees, and select delegates to the said county convention, in which precincts will be entitled to representation upon the following basis: One delegate for each precinct, and one additional delegate for every 25 votes or fraction thereof exceeding 12, cast for Governor at the 1876 election, such ratio as the basis the following apportionment is made:

Precinct No. 1 Bijou Basin	2 Delegates.
" " 2 Bishop's Mill	2 "
" " 3 Monument	2 "
" " 4 South Water	2 "
" " 5 Colorado City	2 "
" " 6 Colorado Springs	15 "
" " 7 Fountain	2 "
" " 8 Woodward's	2 "
" " 9 Bagdad Park	2 "
" " 10 Florissant	2 "
" " 11 Manitou	3 "
" " 12 Four Mile	2 "
" " 13 Little Fountain	2 "
" " 14 Manitou	2 "
" " 15 Big Sandy	1 "

By order of the republican county committee.
N. S. CULVER,
Chairman.

Hon. F. W. Pitkin.

It is no secret that for several weeks past the name of Hon. F. W. Pitkin, of Ouray, has been prominent before the people of the state as the probable republican nominee for governor. His nomination by the convention is almost a foregone conclusion. At his request we have heretofore refrained from presenting his name as an acknowledged candidate—for such he has not been. In answer to all inquiries, and appeals he has invariably replied that he was not a politician, was not seeking any office whatever, and above all that he would not accept the nomination for governor if any other Southern man wanted it, and particularly if there was any probability that Mr. Chilcott might be induced to accept it. But it was understood some time ago that Mr. Chilcott aspired to go to congress. Since Mr. Chilcott's withdrawal he may become a prominent candidate for the senate. In either event there will be no conflict of interests—nor of localities.

Mr. Pitkin has also resisted all appeals made to him to authorize the use of his name until he first consulted his party in San Juan, particularly in his home, Ouray. Obligated to stay at Pueblo during the winter, on account of health, he has—recently returned home. He returns to find his home and the party throughout San Juan enthusiastic for him. In the meantime his name has been freely discussed throughout the entire state, and the movement started without his knowledge and consent, and a spontaneous outgrowth of popular sentiment, has daily gained strength until he has been compelled to yield to the voice of the people, and now to say that should the convention nominate him the governor he would not feel at liberty to decline an honor so tendered.

In presenting his name, therefore, we will assume that he is an acknowledged candidate—of the people, and we feel that in that candidacy San Juan is truly honored. Mr. Pitkin is one of the very best men in the state, a gentleman in every sense of the word, a man of fine education, culture and attainments, who will reflect honor upon the position and the state. He is an honest man, uncontaminated by politics, and were he to devote his time to politics could not be contaminated by them. Unassuming, affable and courteous in his manner, he wins friends and keeps them, and wherever he is known he is held in the highest esteem. In fact, no man in the state has more or warmer friends and admirers, and we are sure that if nominated for governor he will draw a large vote from the ranks of his opponents.—Silver World.

"Bite of Travel at Home," by H. H.

This is one of the most enjoyable and readable books which it has been our fortune to meet with for a long time. We have read it every word, with not only unflagging, but growing interest. Its writer is truly and lovingly in sympathy with nature. All through the book are picture stories, of "simple folk" she has met with in her journeyings. The whole book, which is a series of bright colored word paintings, is filled with strong, healthy, happy sentiment, without one touch of morbid wordy sentimentality. Those who wish to, but who have not, and cannot visit California, New England or Colorado, can visit it through the pages of this book. Those who intend to visit these places should read it, that they may go with open eyes. A charming introductory preface to their travels, they will find it. And those who have visited these lands should read it for remembrance sake.

Wagon Wheel Gap Springs.

WAGON WHEEL GAP, JUNE 23, 1878.

To the Editor of the Gazette.—

Spending the most of yesterday at Del Norte, I did not find anything of interest for your paper, as the town at present is very dull and some of the people are apprehensive that the rival, Alamosa, will affect its interests seriously.

A pleasant ride up the Rio Grande of 30 miles brought us to this place. Every one either on business or pleasure should stop over here at least one day. Some of the reasons are as follows: First, the scenery is grand. The Gap proper, through which the Rio Grande flows, is very narrow with perpendicular rocks rising like palisades to the height of 800 to 1,000 feet.

About one mile from the main road are the celebrated hot springs that carry health to the invalid and joy to the pleasure seeker. All should take a bath for their wonderfully invigorating qualities. And then the fishing is good. I do not know of any better place on the river for it. Our host, Mr. Peck knows how to entice the fishes on to his hooks. The writer in his company enjoyed fishing for about three hours and as the result was eighteen pounds we felt very well paid.

I caught the largest, which weighed just three pounds. Mr. Editor, it is not often that one feels perfectly satisfied with either fishing or hunting in this country, but I was so well satisfied that I concluded to go on my way on the next coach.

A new hotel has been built since I was here last, and it is well furnished. Mrs. Duncan, formerly of Del Norte, has leased the property for ten months and is keeping a first class house.

Mr. Peck keeps the old stand yet; his tables are well supplied with the luxuries of the season, and trout never tasted better than there. Under the faithful management of Mr. Peck and his estimable wife the tourist will always feel at home. EL PERROCKO.

FROM LEADVILLE.

The Carbonate Spur—Location of Leadville.

LEADVILLE, June 13, 1878.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

The Park Range on the east of Leadville is somewhat angular in its declivities, but its general course is due north and south. Leadville is six miles west of the water shed. On either side, the range sends out a succession of rapidly declining spurs between which lie the gold-bearing gulches which even yet are not thoroughly worked out. Standing on the summit of the range at a point a trifle south of east from Leadville, with your face to the west, your eyes easily take in the whole of the "carbonate" district so far developed. You will be enraptured with the grandeur and beauty of the scenery, the magnificent range of Saguache with its scores of lofty peaks only twenty miles away, and the lovely upper Arkansas valley with its silt ridges and deep cut valleys at your feet, but as the view narrows down to details, you will see just below you a sharp saddle which connects with the range—a bare knob five hundred feet above timber line. The head of the spur whose terminal hills near Leadville contain the richest carbonate mines in the district. Big Evans' gulch heads on the north of the saddle, and low gulches on the south. From the rounded summit of the knob to timber line the descent is precipitous. Thence forward more moderate, but still rapid. Just below timber line in a basin slope on the south, carbonate prospectors are sinking their shafts with good indications of success. From this point for some distance the spur bears a little north and west, while on the left you see a partially detached spur heading with the hill in which are located the Printer Boy and other gold-bearing mines. Oro City lying just at its foot. Between this sub-spur and the main spur lies California gulch proper, running from its head above Oro to Leadville. Resuming your inspection of the main spur, you find that its rocky head extends to a point, about half way to Leadville, where a mine of very good iron ore has been opened. This mine supplies the smelting works at Leadville with a very necessary article of flux. You discover that the spur has been broadening in its descent, its surface contour, north and south, having increased a mile or more in extent. From the iron mine the direction of the spur is again due west, but on the right a narrow ridge puts out and forms the northern boundary of Strayhorse Gulch, as well as a part of the southern boundary of Big Evans. Between this ridge and the spur, and a little below the iron mine, a very pretty miniature park forms the head of Strayhorse, the gulch winding around the northern limits of the two terminal hills that prolong the spur to Leadville. At the park and on its left you notice that the spur seems to have been broken across, which is really the case, for this is the location of a geological fault, which forms the eastern boundary of the upper carbonate hill in which are located the famous Camp Bird (Gallagher) and Iron Hat carbonate mines. These mines are the best developed in the camp and their continued richness is exceedingly good evidence of the immense value of the carbonate deposits. Another fault separates this hill by a shallow ravine from a lower one on the west which ends the spur at the eastern borders of Leadville. The streams of California and Stray Horse gulches swing around this hill, the former from the south and the latter from the north, and unite a little below town. Around the western face of this lower hill are located the Crescent, Carbonate, Shamrock, Excelsior and other valuable mines whose dumps are many of them plainly visible from town. Both these hills have long since been covered with claims.

The most successful prospecting this season has been along Strayhorse, where a number of promising strikes have been made. The prospectors in Big and Little Evans, further to the north, have not been very successful so far, but scores of them are still hopeful. The prospecting circle is rapidly spreading outward and upward.

The snows persistently hang to the mountain tops, with the evident purpose of celebrating "the Glorious Fourth."

Leadville seems to grow livelier each succeeding week—more people, more throngs, more new enterprises. You can scarcely pass up Chestnut street, after supper, without choosing your way through the crowds. Every evening the cornet band of the new theatre gives you stirring music and you feel as though you were quite in the world after all. J. L. LOOMIS.

The United States circuit and district courts convene at Denver in the regular July term, on Tuesday next. Judges Dillon and Hallett will sit.

Rocky Mountain Lapidary.

Mr. Moore has repaired damages and again is ready for business. He offers extra inducements to people to call on him at the lapidary on the Fountain. See his notice.

Proposals will be received by William Black at the signal office in this city, during the fore part of July for twenty-five cords of wood to be delivered on the summit of Pike's Peak. Further information can be had from Mr. Black at the signal office.

Fourth of July Excursion.

We are requested to announce that the excursion to Alamosa has not been postponed, but on the contrary the arrangements have all been completed to start on the morning of July 4th, returning on the 6th.

The fare for the round trip has been placed at the low sum of five dollars for each person. Ample accommodations for all have been provided for.

We are informed by our correspondents at Alamosa that the fishing in the Rio Grande, at that place, is all that could be desired, and as an entire day will be spent there, lovers of the piscatorial art should not fail to go along.

Base Ball in the North.

On Saturday the Denver "Browns" leave for Cheyenne, where they will play the "Reds" in the afternoon. Thence going to Salt Lake City, where they will play Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week with the Mormon and Gentile crack clubs. The Denver boys are hopeful; the club is a first-class one and should be victorious. What is the reason that Colorado Springs has no ball club? There must certainly be, in a city of this size, a sufficient number of lovers of the national pastime to organize a club. Boys, let us hear from you.

A Defense of Garland.

To the Editor of the Gazette:—Can I be permitted to say a few words in the columns of your paper in defense of Garland, the most maligned town in the state of Colorado?

Every one who has heard of Garland has heard it spoken of as the "worst town in Colorado." Such were my impressions until I visited the place, and a sense of justice compels me to denounce such an infamous charge as false and malicious. A more quiet and orderly town I never was in all my life. To get up a quarrel there was absolutely impossible, for when even an obstreperous individual undertook to do so he was at once promptly shot down by some law-abiding citizen and the trouble effectually squelched.

There were thirty-five saloons and gambling halls in that little hamlet but I was informed by "Appetite Sam," a prominent citizen of the place, that they were all brought there by the efforts of the Sunday school superintendents in order to powerfully illustrate to the youth of Garland the evils of such associations. They were simply "frightful examples," that was all.

In regard to the healthfulness of the locality, it is fully indicated by the graveyard on a little hill in the outskirts of the town. Thirteen graves mark the spot, and George Handly, who kindly led me to the place, informed me that but one person resting there died a natural death, and that was an infant. Such facts as these speak volumes for the climate of Garland, and no wonder they indulged in a little pardonable pride when referring to it.

Garland has gone now. It has gone down to Alamosa, bag and baggage. They were moving when I left, and the last sight I saw as the train pulled out was a law-abiding citizen, armed with a Spencer carbine, anxiously searching for a person who had "disturbed the peace" (at least his peace) the evening before. It was something about seventy dollars and a game of "draw," but I didn't get all the particulars; and I have been wondering ever since if that disturber of the peace was found that day by the carbine man. Let us trust that he was, and that peace and order were once more vindicated by an upright and pious community. Vale, Garland!

Company B's Assembly.

The closing assembly of Co. B., will be held at the armory on Friday evening next. The members of the company have made every exertion to make this the most enjoyable of the series, and it is hoped that all who have received invitations will be present. We are requested to state that carriages will be provided should the weather be inclement.

Camping on the Banks of the Rio Grande.

Off we go on a construction train, loaded with ties and railroad fixings. We are pushed, instead of pulled, by our iron horse, which is rather an improvement, as we have neither smoke nor cinders. We move slowly out of poor Garland, so soon to be no more, on past Fort Garland, a garrisoned post built of adobe. In such a peaceful looking land soldiers seem more ornamental than useful, but I suppose it is upon the principle that "an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure." I hear it has done its work, or rather the coming of the railroad, has made it no longer necessary and it is soon to be abandoned. Old Baldy lies to the right of us, its gray stony sides and snowy top covered with grand effects of light and shade. The sky is not too clear. Just beyond Old Baldy is a toothed snow ridge which the sunlight has crowned with gold. 23 miles of our road is as straight and level as a line can be drawn. We make one stop to unload some fencing for a cattle ranchman, who is just going to fence in 700 acres. Herds of sleek-looking cattle are feeding on the great natural farm we are riding through. So sleek and fat are they that they might have fed on oil cake. In the car with us, seemingly having us in charge, is a great burly Irishman, apparently a fighting machine. I respectfully admire his muscular strength, but would never wish to be on his wrong side; as there is no chance for a free fight just now his energies lie dormant. After fighting when one is not thirsty, according to his philosophy, the next best thing is sleep. On we go, ah! you in cloudy lands, way down at sea level! How I wish I could lift you suddenly up 8000 feet nearer the blue sky, up to this plain with its inspiring atmosphere, where every breath is a delight, where the eyes can never tire of gazing on the encircling snow-topped mountain range of four hundred miles. May fate never banish me from beautiful, health-giving Colorado. While we are dreamily gazing at the superb picture spread out before us, we come to the end of the track, and find the good governor, the friend who never fails, waiting for us with wagons to drive us into town, only a mile away. And so we come to the banks of the Rio Grande, drive through the town of Alamosa, find our tents pitched near the governor's ranch house, beds of sweet fresh hay on which to spread our buffalo robes and blankets. An ingenious folding camp table, contrived by one of the governor's sons, camp stools in abundance, a cooking stove in front of our tent, tea kettles and cooking utensils. Near us flows the river, full of soft, pure water, and stocked with trout and eel. Sail boats and row boats are at our disposal. We make the acquaintance of a son of old Virginia, who goes sailing with us and helps us in more ways than one, and always with the air of wishing our wants were more.

Delicious creamy milk is brought twice a day to our tent (not house) door. We scorn houses. Who would live in, still worse sleep in, a house, when a tent was to be had? How good our supper tastes, and what fun we have had cooking it. The rosiest of sunset glows covers the Sierra Blanco. It must have been on such a night as this that the devout minded old cavaliers first entered this park, and seeing the mountains flooded with this red light gave to the range the name of Sangre de Cristo, a name which, while to Puritan ears it may seem sacrilegious, to these warm-blooded Spaniards, after their painful wanderings, with their vivid imagination and poetical nature, it was a heartfelt offering of what they found so wondrous fair, as a perpetual monument to our Lord. And as in journeyings through this sunny land such names as these do ever recur, they fill me with a reverence too deep for utterance in speech, not only for the name but for those brave spirits who have sanctified the paths by which they trod. An expression of devout sentiment, even if the life is not always in keeping with it, is a reaching after good, and as such has its share of blessing. I am glad the work of naming this land was not given to those who dedicate Mother Nature's wonder places to the evil one, who when they find a great boiling spring filled with healing waters, call it the "Devil's tea kettle" and when they find a basin sculptured out of solid rock, by no earthly hand, filled with glistening waters of such unfilled purity that it is a fit christening font for a new born babe, and of such freshness that the weary worn and sin-stained would fain wash their sins away, they call it "the Devil's punch bowl." One of our party says this park reminds him of the vale of Cashmere. I have never seen this vale, but if it is like the San Luis Park it is worthy of all that poet has ever said or sung in its praise.

When we turn in for the night we find we have not brought too many blankets, although the roll seemed so unnecessarily large. Next time we will bring more. After most refreshing sleep an awakening comes such as uncaged birds sing of.

Personal.

F. E. Dow, the clothing merchant, went to Denver yesterday.

A. Cohen and lady, of Canon City, are guests at the Crawford.

Mr. J. S. Wolfe went to Leadville in Monday's coach, on official business.

Father Hinsen, of Belleville, Ill., and Father Wippert, of Salina, Kas., are guests at the National.

S. A. James, esq., of Sigourney, Iowa, is rusticated for a few days at the Cliff House, Manitou.

Dr. H. C. Hart, a prominent physician of Philadelphia, accompanied by his family, is staying at the Beebe House, Manitou.

Wm. S. Barker, esq., returned from his Leadville trip yesterday. He reports things thereabouts as being in excellent condition.

J. E. Vaughan, esq., of Chicago, a prominent official of the C. & B. & Q. railroad, together with his wife, are guests at the Manitou House.

H. C. Tillinghast, Esq., of Chicago, and who is interested in the hide business in this city, passed through the city yesterday, bound for Denver.

Mr. T. A. Hay, after spending some six weeks in the San Juan mines, returned on last evening's train from the south. Mr. Hay disposed of a placer mine at a fair figure while absent, and is still the fortunate owner of several silver mines.

Mr. S. C. Robinson leaves this or tomorrow morning with a party of gentlemen for the Gunnison. They have formed a company for the purpose of erecting a smelter, to be located at the forks of Slate and East rivers. We wish them all possible success.

Theatrical.

"Caste" was rendered in an excellent manner by the Wallace comedy company last night at the city hall. A good house of the better class of amusement patrons witnessed this elegant entertainment. The orchestra during the evening discoursed some very fine music and so good a string band we have seldom listened to.

The respective talent and dramatic ability of the various performers was brought out in full vigor by the judicious allotment of the parts.

Regarding the individual excellencies of the actors and actresses we feel that we cannot do them justice.

The plot of "Caste" teaches that the classes as defined by society are very often at fault, and that pure gold is often found amongst the baser metals.

The scenes were laid in London, the suburbs and one of the fashionable quarters.

Hon. G. D'Alroy, of noble family, falls in love with Esther Eccles, a ballet dancer and daughter of a plebeian. Eccles, Sen., the father (J. C. Wallace) is very vulgar, and is continually shocking Capt. Hautree, a gentleman friend, and the Marquise de St. Maur, the aristocratic mother of D'Alroy, who has married Esther Eccles. The Marquis who has had fond hopes of a fine match for her son, is very much incensed at his marriage. D'Alroy and Hautree go to India with their regiments and report comes back that D'Alroy has been murdered. Eccles, who is a drunkard, asks aid of the marquise, which is indignantly declined by D'Alroy's wife.

D'Alroy finally returns with his wife and is reconciled to his proud mother. Polly Eccles, his wife's sister, is married to a rising young plumber and all ends happily. The comedy was succeeded by the farce of "Family Jars." Wallace, Beresford and Miss Fannie Alton sustained their parts with due credit, and all were much pleased with the entire entertainment.

To-night will be presented Henry J. Byron's wonderfully successful comedy, in three acts, entitled "Our Boys," now in its fourth year, having been played consecutively at the Vaudeville Theatre, London, one thousand and eighty-six times up to June 1st, 1878. Mr. Wallace will appear in the character of "Perky Middlewick," an eccentric personage who drops and inserts his 'h's' in a most promiscuous manner. This role is a favorite one with Mr. Wallace, and one in which he has become very deservedly popular. The remaining characters will be ably sustained by the various members of the company. Miss Clara Baker appearing in the character of Mary Melrose, the poor cousin. It is seldom that Colorado Springs is favored with a company of such unexceptionally fine artists as are visiting us at present, and a due appreciation of their excellence should be shown by crowded houses.

Jurors for U. S. Courts.

Marshal L. C. Dana has summoned the following grand and petit jurors from this place to appear before the United States circuit and district courts, July term, 1878, to be held in Denver:—

GRAND JURORS.

To appear July 2, at 2 p. m.
Joseph B. Riggs, George Summers, Anthony Bott, J. R. Kennedy, D. H. Walbridge, and Edward Nicholson.

PETIT JURORS.

To report July 5, at 2 o'clock, p. m.
Lewis Hagar, John D. Rogers, Newell Hodgman, Alvin A. McGovney, W. D. Crown, A. F. Goodrich, E. S. Joslyn.

Larceny.

R. B. Madison, a colored man, was arrested in Manitou last evening by Marshal Dana, charged with stealing a coat and "pocket-book" from W. H. Lowther. It seems that about two months ago Madison was employed at the Crawford house, during which time the theft was committed, but in what manner we were not informed. Since that time nothing had been seen of him until recently when it was learned that he was working at the Beebe house, Manitou. So, armed with a warrant, the marshal proceeded to Manitou, found the man who was wearing the stolen coat, brought him to the city and lodged him at the stone hotel. His examination will probably take place this morning.

Dissolution of Co-partnership.

MANITOU, COLORADO, 14th June 1878.
The Co-partnership heretofore existing between Chas. Cross and Dan'l Stevens is this day dissolved by mutual consent. Outstanding accounts must be paid to Dan'l Stevens, who assumes all liabilities of the old firm.
Dated June 14th 1878.

I shall continue the livery business in Manitou at the old stand of Cross and Stevens where I shall be pleased to meet my old friends.

CHEYENNE CANON ICE.

It is an undisputed fact, that impure ice is as unsalubrious and dangerous to use as impure water. And believing that the wants of this community would justify me, and that an effort to supply a good and pure article would be appreciated, I built, at a great expense, a large reservoir, which I filled from the pure sparkling water of Cheyenne Canon, and from which I cut and stored a large quantity of ice of the most unquestionable purity.

T. E. JOHNSON.

We, the undersigned, residing in the neighborhood of Cheyenne Canon, fully endorse the above, and take pleasure in recommending the ice, knowing it is what it is claimed to be, Cheyenne Canon ice.
